Forger Defrauds Mt. Sterling People Out of Thousands of Dollars and Makes Good His Getaway Saturday Night

Harry King, operating a tailoring establishment in this city for the past six months, "suddenly" decided it would be easier to earn his money by getting forged checks cashed than by working at his trade, and Saturday night began to present the worthless paper to numerous merchants of the city, most of whom fell for the stranger and "gladly" accommodated him. He seemed to play no favorites and business men in most every line were his victims. The checks ranged in value from $15 to $117 and bore the signatures of Mrs. B. Wright, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. B. Wilson, B. Smith and numerous others, and were on many different banks. As a rule he would go into a store and after making a small purchase, present a check for a much larger amount and receive the difference in change. This seemed to work with entire satisfaction until he went into the store of Chenault & Orear, where he bought a $5 safety razor and a pocket knife, giving a check in payment of same. After thinking the matter over Carroll Chenault, Jr., and Lee Orear became suspicious and called up the banker on whose bank the check was issued and were informed there was no such account in their bank. At this juncture they went to King's shop, in the McKee building over the Rogers Co., where they found him and his wife preparing to leave. After telling King the check was no good, he paid for the knife and returned the razor, but before doing this kept talking about a diamond, which it later developed he had bought from Bryan & Robinson for $117 and had given a worthless check. He seemed to be under the impression that they had come for the diamond. This was about 9:30 o'clock and immediately after this King and his wife are supposed to have caught a train going east. They had three trunks, which were checked to Ashland, and it is said that two other trunks were sent to the same place several days before. There seems to be no doubt as to King's wife going on this train east Saturday night, but a number of people are of the opinion that King got on the train and then got off and got a taxicab and drove to Lexington.

King had been here, about six months, had been in the habit of getting checks cashed which had been given him for goods in paying accounts and often times taking the difference in currency. The checks had always been good and when he presented the forged ones Saturday night during the rush of business, very little was thought of their worth and they were generally cashed without question. The only two places that we have heard of where he presented checks which were refused were at S. M. Newmeyer's and Greene & Williams'. He came here with a enamel company and after getting started into business appeared to be a hustler and was doing a large business.

The forgeries were not generally discovered until Sunday when Policeman Neale Guilfoile was sent to Ashland on the trail, where he expected to get a trail of King from the baggage.

The following parties were victims of this crook to the extent below indicated:

Bryan & Robinson, $117 diamond.
J. H. Keller, $25.
Mrs. A. V. Jones, $15.
Mrs. Buford Boone, $200 1-em-stitching machine.
W. B. Small, $20 account.
L. M. Redmond, $30.
Clayton Howell, $97.50 account, covered by mortgage on furniture.
Sutton & Son, $10 and $140 accounts covered by mortgage on furniture.
I. Morris, $11.50.
H. C. McKee, $800 account for rent.

John W. William Dead of Complication

On December 9 at his late home, West Main street, John W. William, up to a few years past a leading and prosperous business man of this city, died of a complication of troubles at the age of 56 years and 19 days.

He was a son of Thomas and Sarah Elizabeth William, deceased, was twice married and is survived by two children, Thomas W. and Miss Hattie William; one brother, Edward William, and five sisters, Mrs. Carrie Carr, Mrs. Hunt Quisenberry, Mrs. Julia Cook, of Winchester; Mrs. Robert Fletcher, of Louisville, and Mrs. John Grayson, of this city.

In Masonry he had attained the degree of Knight Templar and was also a member of the order of Elks. You who are members of these lodges, who have taken their oaths, know full well what is required of their faithful.

After songs, and prayer by Rev. Clyde Darsie at the late home at 2 o'clock p. m. on Sunday the burial service of the Knight Templar was conducted at the grave in Macpherson Cemetery.

Mr. William started in business in this county a moneyless lad and from continuous labor as a business man he had amassed a comfortable competency and was regarded as one of our best business men. His duties as a Knight Templar and a member of the Elks were cheerfully performed and through these orders he became interested in and contributed to the children of the homes. So as a business man, energetic and gaining, with his life devoted to these orders, he gave through them most liberally and as he was blessed in wealth. Knowing his duties, they were well filled. A Knight Templar deceased has accepted the exhortations of the order:

"Let the brother of low degree rejoice in that he is exalted."
"Come unto me all ye that labor, and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

"Christ suffered for us, leaving us an example that we should follow in His steps."

"For we were as sheep going astray, but now are we returned to the shepherd and bishop of our souls."

"If our brother or sister be naked and destitute of daily food, and one of you say, depart in peace, he ye warmed and filled, and ye give them

These exhortations indicate the secret impulses of the man accepting them.

Will Arrive By Special Motor and Will Give a Present To Every Child In Town That Day—All Schools of City To Close

Old Santa Claus himself will arrive in Mt. Sterling on Wednesday morning, December 21, just four days before he visits the children of the rest of the world, and promptly at 10:30 o'clock will give a present to every child that is on the street at that time. He will travel in a special high-powered motor car which will be heavily laden with wonderful gifts to make glad the kiddie hearts. Notice to this effect is being sent every family in this and surrounding counties, and when the glad day arrives the largest crowd ever in Mt. Sterling is expected to be present. The downtown section of the city will be elaborately decorated with Christmas trees and other Christmas paraphernalia which will have a tendency to give the glad Christmas spirit to all, old and young alike.

For this one day all the stores of the city will offer special inducements to Christmas shoppers, and as their stocks are the largest and most complete ever brought here, a big holiday trade is anticipated. All out-of-town guests will receive a royal welcome and on behalf of Mt. Sterling's business men, we assure them they will be offered the largest selection of Christmas gifts ever seen in this city and at prices much lower than usually asked for the same goods elsewhere.

On this wonderful occasion it is the duty of every parent within a radius of 25 miles to bring their children to Mt. Sterling so that they can get a glimpse of Old Saint Nicholas himself and receive a gift direct from him in person. This is the happiest time in the year for childhood and we owe it to our children to see that they get as much joy and happiness out of the Christmas season as possible. A large sum has been gotten together by the business interests of the city and no stone will be left unturned to make the visit of Santa Claus to Mt. Sterling a day long to be remembered by every child that is present on next Wednesday, December 21.

POULTRY STANDARDIZATION IDEA SPREADING SOUTHWARD

Poultry standardization work as being carried on in Kentucky under the direction of the extension division of the College of Agriculture is gradually spreading to other southern states, three counties in Alabama being the latest one to consider the plan, according to A. S. Chapin, poultry extension specialist of the college. Miss Bennie Frank King, home demonstration agent at Tusculumbia, Ala., under whose direction the work will be conducted, recently completed a visit to Simpson, Warren and Barren counties, where she studied the methods being used in these counties to place purebred White Plymouth Rocks on every farm. According to Miss King, steps will be taken to start similar work in the three counties surrounding Tusculumbia, Ala.

Friendship improves happiness and abates misery by the doubling of our joy and the dividing of our grief.—Cicero.

More men are beaten by success than by failure. There are men who cannot be defeated by difficulty nor disappointment; but before praise, reward and recognition, they go aumbling down. The man who is not ahead of what the people praise him for, who is not willing to forego their praise to fulfill his program, is already on the down grade. The man who thinks he has done something, has not many more things to do. One's program should be so long and so complete that when praise comes to him it will seem to him to be trivial, or for some accomplishment which he made long ago and has left behind. LOVE BESIDE THE FIRE

The price of autumn fades away on wooded vale and hill,
The days are growing grayer and the nights are growing chill,
Then, hey for the home and happy eyes and joys that never tire!
We'll face the worst that winter brings, with love beside the fire!

O, sweet as youth the springtime was, and fair were summer's bowers,
And gaily flowed the pageantry of autumn's golden hours;
With sadness from the hills we saw their sunlit days retire,
But winter brings us back again to love beside the fire!

So bolt the door against the blast, and start the cheerful blaze
And let us sit, sweetheart of mine, and talk of olden days,
Of days when you first woke in me the dream of young desire,
When yet I hardly dared to hope for love beside the fire!

COMMUNITY IN WASHINGTON OUTLINES FARM WORK PLAN

By means of a community program of work which they have just completed in co-operation with the county agent, farmers in the Pleasant Grove community of Washington county have started a unified effort to improve agricultural conditions in that district. Corn, wheat, cattle, hogs, sheep and poultry will be given special attention in the program. It was designed by determining the factors which limit the profit from these phases of farming and then outlining methods whereby the limitations could be removed. Demonstrations to be conducted by different farmers and the better feeding and care of livestock are to have an important place in carrying out the purposes of the program.

Don't be a crank; be a self-starter!

Don't be the sort of employe who must have instructions pounded into him before they have any effect.

Don't be the kind that must be addressed in an angry tone if they are to be impressed.

It should be sufficient for an employer or superior officer to pleasantly request certain services from you.

The man who must be whacked and pounded into action is no good in any establishment, and the sooner such men get in the gate the better for their employers.

It is too expensive to hire men to work and then have to hire others to watch them every minute in order that proper service may be secured.

The willing worker, the man who acts immediately upon instructions which are pleasantly given him is the sort of employe who is worth having.

Such a man gives honest service at all times, and this is what counts in the work-a-day world.

FARM MANURE VALUABLE AS ACTIVE FERTILIZER

The fact that almost one-half of the large amount of plant food which it contains is readily available and can be used at once by young plants makes farm manure one of the most effective fertilizers which farmers can use, soils specialists say. About one-half the nitrogen, one-sixth of the phosphorus and one-half of the potash in manure is soluble or in a condition which will permit it to be used at once by growing crops. This quality makes farm manure an excellent top dressing for such crops as wheat, young clover or grass. The remainder of the plant food becomes available gradually, thus making them a highly valuable source of plant food.

"In contrast to manure, straw and stovers are slow fertilizers partly because they are of a woody nature," George Roberts, head of the agronomy department of the College of Agriculture, said. "In actual plant food, however, together with the various crop residues, is as rich and sometimes even richer than average stable manure. The chief difference between manure and residues is the fact that the latter give up their fertility more slowly when turned back to the soil."

"A part of the difficulty in making these slow fertilizers active by using them as bedding. When used in this manner, the coarse material is broken up mechanically, mixed with the solid manure and saturated with liquid manure in which the plant food is readily available. Animal manure also contains a large amount of bacteria which act upon the straw and coarse material to make the plant food more readily available."

Great Men Soon Drop From Sight

Not one word of criticism has fallen from the lips or pen of Woodrow Wilson against those who even yet shower vituperation against him. The nobility of his character shines out refulgent in his retirement. But a reaction has set in against the Wilson haters. The majority of us Americans play the game square. We do not strike a man when he is down. We do not make sport of another's affliction.—Marshall News. Mr. Wilson was the most popular man in the world up to the time of the armistice. Once that vital paper was signed, his popularity began to wane. It waned because for one thing, smaller men were jealous of him. It waned also because no man remains popular with the world for long. Those who have the most important trusts remain popular the shortest time. When the political rodents began digging under the American president at home, their counterparts became active in Europe. As the months come and go and the years creep past, it is being more and more borne into the world mind, and the American mind, that this country's refusal to join in the pact of Versailles was a misfortune second only to the misfortune of the war's occurrence. We do not pretend to know how the world historians will deal with Mr. Wilson, but our observations convince us that historians are never very partial to historic characters whose careers ran counter to the historians' tangents.

Many foreign countries are clamoring for Tanlac. Its fame is world wide. Land & Priest.

HOME-GROWN SEED MAKES BEST CROPS

Kentucky farmers who will need clover, alfalfa, grass, soybean or cowpea seed for planting their crops next spring have been advised by crops specialists at the College of Agriculture to make plans to obtain that grown in this state. Home-grown seed is an advantage in that it is usually better acclimated and of the proper variety. Purchasing seed in this state is to be recommended since it not only supplies a market for a home-grown product, but also makes it possible for the farmer to obtain the best seed possible at what is probably the lowest price, the specialists say.

"The purchasing of soybean and cowpea seed within the state is of special importance in view of the fact that a large acreage of these crops was grown during the past year for seed, large quantities of which are now available," Ralph Kenney, one of the specialists, said. "Kentucky farmers will profit to hold most of their seed until after February in order to let prospective growers in the state buy theirs at home. On the other hand, farmers who plan to grow these crops next year will profit by buying their seed early within the state since they can save from 20 to 30 per cent on the purchase and at the same time provide a market within the state for the seed grown here."

Increasing use is being made of the service rendered by county agents and extension agents and extension specialists in bringing seed buyer and grower together, according to Mr. Kenney. By means of the plan, farmers desiring to purchase seed can receive information from the college while farmers living in communities having good home grown seed list it with their county agents and in this way secure their assistance in locating a market close to home.

NEEDED LEGISLATIVE ENACTMENTS

Useless and expensive laws now on the statute books should be repealed. The first to be mentioned are measures in conflict with the adjustment of laws on taxation. When values were up a high assessment was just and few there were who had cause for and did complain of onerous taxation, but now with a reduction in all products a reduction in assessment is necessary and all laws in conflict should be repealed.

An office that needs to be cut out is that of oil inspector. Oil products are made higher in order to give help to official patronage. It is a needless office for which the great common people make gift to a favored few.

There are other matters that need legislative enactment and which we will call special attention to in subsequent issues of The Advocate. These we first mention because of their importance to the taxpayers and which need immediate attention.

MT. STERLING ALWAYS TO THE FRONT

Wednesday, December 21, will be a day when Santa Claus will display his wares. The program will be an interesting one, a novel one that will attract a large crowd to Mt. Sterling. All stores will be artistically decorated and the city will be a spectacle of beauty. In another column will be found an advertisement showing just what this eventful occasion is and of its benefits to the city of Mt. Sterling and surrounding territory. Other cities of larger population, more pretentious, are in this way getting before the people, but none of them will outshine our Mt. Sterling business people.

A LESSON WITH A VALUE

The Harry C. King episode furnishes another lesson of value to our people. They should know that the checks are good before cashing them. THE TOP OF THE LADDER

Every individual who makes any headway in his chosen field must struggle against the current.

The fact that a man is a success does not indicate he has never encountered to meet adverse conditions, but that he has met and overcome them numberless times and is always ready for the combat.

The only people who do not encounter these difficulties in their work are those who fail when they reach them and drift along in the tide with the debris.

We cannot train to overcome adverse conditions by shying around them if we could there wouldn't be near as much room at the top of the ladder.

TEN THINGS TO REMEMBER

1. The value of time.
2. The pleasure of working.
3. The success of perseverance.
4. The worth of character.
5. The virtue of patience.
6. The wisdom of economy.
7. The obligation of duty.
8. The power of a smile.
9. The profit of experience.
10. The joy of achievement.

The above are, of course, in addition to the Ten Commandments.

Health Exposition in Louisville in February

Scientists, physicians, surgeons and research workers of international fame will attend the National Health Exposition to be held in Louisville, February 1 to 9, it has been announced by Dr. A. T. McCormack, collaborating epidemiologist United States Public Health Service. Dr. McCormack has sent invitations to men and women of international prominence in all parts of the world, but time enough has not elapsed for replies from those in other countries.

Among those who have accepted the invitation to speak at the big exposition are health officers, both city and state, research workers and a member of the Mayo Clinic. They are:

Dr. M. J. Rosenau, dean of the Harvard School of Public Health; Dr. Josephine Baker, director of the department of child hygiene, New York City board of health; Dr. William A. Evans, former health officer of Chicago and one of the foremost public health editors; Dr. George T. Palmer, president of the Illinois tuberculosis association and director of the bureau of tuberculosis of the Illinois state board of health; Dr. Frederick R. Greene, secretary, council on health and public instruction, American Medical Association; Dr. Valeria H. Parker, director of the interdepartmental board of social hygiene; Dr. John H. Stokes, distinguished syphilographer of the Mayo Clinic; Dr. Frankwood Williams, director of the National Association of Mental Hygiene; Dr. W. S. Rankin, state health officer of North Carolina, a member of the council of health and public instruction of the American Medical Association, and recently president of the American Public Health Association; Dr. John Dill Robertson, health officer of Chicago; Dr. John R. McDowell, director of health for the Lake Division, American Red Cross; Dr. John R. McMullen, United States Public Health Service, stationed in Louisville; Miss Frances Brink, director of the National Organization for Public Health Nursing.

In conjunction with the exposition, which will be under the direction of the United States Public Health Service, the State Board of Health, the Jefferson County Board of Health and the City Health Department, the United States Public Health Service will hold its national public health institute and the city and the county health officers of the state will hold their annual conference.

Every resident of Kentucky and neighboring states is invited to attend the exposition in order that the gospel of good health may be spread broadcast over the country. Dr. McCormack, in condensing his estimate of the good to result from the educational features of the exposition, into cold, statistical figures, says the exposition will add a year to the average Kentuckian's life by knowledge of health matters and prevention gained by visualization of conditions conducive to ill health to which the average person daily is subjected.

HENDERSON COMMUNITY PLANS YEAR'S PROGRAM

Farmers in the Dixie community of Henderson county will give special attention to corn, hogs, dairy cattle and poultry during the coming year, according to a program of work which they have just completed in co-operation with County Agent D. W. Martin and the College of Agriculture extension division. Before planning the program, farmers in the community determined the factors which were limiting the profit from the principal farming activities and then planned demonstrations and other practices whereby these factors could be eliminated in order to make their farming operations more profitable.

DON'T SAY IT CAN'T

BE DONE—TRY IT

The fact that you know it can't be done doesn't prove anything. It was once an accepted scientific fact that an iron boat couldn't float, but it did. Some years ago, when baseball pitchers began to talk about curved ball a bunch of learned Chicago professors arose and proved scientifically and conclusively that it couldn't be done—that no man could control the course of a ball through air after it had left his hand. Whereupon a delegation of the baseball fraternity took the learned professors out to grounds in a carriage and showed them three stakes set in the ground in a straight line. Then a square-jawed, red-headed pitcher threw the ball to the left of the first stake, to the right of the second stake, to the left of the third. He did it again and again, grinning irreverently all the while. And the learned professors went home and thought it over.

Don't say it can't be done. Try it.

HENDERSON FLOCK SHOWS RESULT OF PROPER CARE

Many farmers in Henderson county, as well as some in surrounding counties, are finding that proper feeding, housing and management of the farm poultry flock pays as a result of the egg production received by Tom Wilson, a Henderson county farmer, who is co-operating with the extension division of the College of Agriculture and County Agent D. W. Martin in conducting a demonstration with his flock of White Wyandottes.

Figures show that each hen in the flock has produced an average of 167 eggs during the 11 months of the second year in which the flock has been a demonstrational one. Last year the flock averaged 147 eggs a bird and this year it appears that each hen will produce more than 188 eggs, according to County Agent Martin. The flock has been fed and managed according to suggestions made for the average farm poultry flock.

When Nerves

Are Unstrung

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Builds Up Vigor and Strength

There are times when men and women cannot help losing strength. They try to do too much or they lose sleep or do not eat enough food that nourishes. Blood, becomes sluggish because poisons clog it. Faces grow pale and pasty looking. It is not long before nerves get unstrung.

The best way to start a change for the better is to take a course of Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It builds the blood. The weakness from a lack of red cells in the blood is overcome. Gude's Pepto-Mangan sends a fresh supply of red cells streaming through the blood. Good blood, pure and free from poisons, starts building vigor and strength. Sleep is better, appetite keener, so that the body becomes properly nourished. Druggists have Gude's Pepto-Mangan in both liquid and tablet form. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package.—Advertisement.

BETTER FEEDING AND CARE WILL MAKE FALL PIGS PAY

Better feeding and housing of fall pigs after weaning time are suggested by animal husbandry at the College of Agriculture as two means whereby the raising of the fall litter may be made profitable on more Kentucky farms. Liberal feeding of tankage, skim milk or buttermilk at this time of the year makes an excellent substitute for the beneficial effects of green pastures while the quarters in which the animals are housed should be dry, although they need not be warm. A wet, chilled pig is never a profitable producer of pork, the specialists say.

One ration which has given good results at the college farm in fall pig feeding is composed of 50 pounds of corn, 50 pounds of middlings and 10 pounds of tankage. Another used successfully is made up of 10 parts of corn and one of tankage. Fifty pounds of corn, 50 pounds of ship-stuff and 10 pounds of tankage also makes a good ration while eight parts of corn and one part of soy beans may be used for a fourth.

Each year many pigs die from pneumonia contracted by their sleeping in wet houses where they are exposed to draughts, the specialists declare. This can be prevented by being sure that the roof to the house is made waterproof and that no water is allowed to run into the house from the outside ground. The floor of the house may be raised by throwing the dirt inside when ditching around the outside of the house to carry the water away.

CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

THE BEST STORY TELLER

Memories mean much to us especially as we grow older and who is there among us who does not count the early home pictures treasured in the back of one's mind as its dearest possession? Can't you remember those happy joyous care-free times when mother used to gather us around her knee in the evening after the day's work was done and tell us the most wonderful stories it has ever been our privilege to hear? Many of us have studied the art of story telling since then and have listened to the world's greatest story tellers, yet to us mother surpassed them all.

We never knew what story she was going to tell, that was always a surprise, and how we did like to guess which one was coming! Wasn't it strange the very night brother Jack did not wash his hands and said he and Jim Thomas were never going to wash their hands again, wasn't it strange that mother should tell us the story of the Pig Brother? Jack and Jim Thomas changed their minds even before she had finished. When Ruth Elizabeth told the most impossible things mother always "just happened" to tell us a wonderfully imaginative fairy tale. And every evening we had Mother Goose rhymes for the baby, but I think we older one enjoyed them as much as the baby did. Although we began these rhymes before she could talk, she used to laugh and clap her hands when we would say them. Sometimes we used to make up tunes and sing them to her. Those were very happy times, come to think of it, they were the happiest I have ever known.

When we went to the kindergarten it seemed just like home because there we heard the same stories mother had told us. And wasn't it fun when the teacher allowed us to tell them to the other children? In the primary our first reading books contained so many of these stories we knew and liked that we read it through in no time.

Mother is gone now, but I can shut my eyes and see her in that old rocker, and nearly every day of my life something from those stories she told comes to me. I guess I listened so intently and loved them so much that they became a part of my life. And so to the end of time for me mother will always be the very best story teller in the world.—Anna Mae Brady.

FARM AND HOME NEWS FROM OVER KENTUCKY

Organization of the Fleming County Poultry Association with 11 charter members marks an important step in the development of more interest in poultry raising in that section, a report from County Agent H. F. McKenney states. Better housing and feeding of farm flocks will be the first aim of the new association's members.

Pupils in two Oldham county schools, one at Crestwood and other at Worth, are receiving hot dishes as a part of their noon meal by the means of the hot school lunch plan recently inaugurated by interested persons and clubs who co-operated with Miss Catherine Taylor, home demonstration agent.

In an effort to increase yields from their corn crops 25 Todd county farmers, who are co-operating with County Agent I. C. Graddy have selected enough seed from the field to plant next year's crop. This method of selection is said to be superior to bin selection.

In order to promote the interests of their breed, Duroc Jersey swine raisers in Fleming county have organized a county swine breeders' association, a report from the county agent says.

From the above-mentioned parties in some instances he secured all merchandise, while in quite a number he received practically all cash.

In the room which he vacated, and on which Judge McKee has an attachment, there is a Hoffman steam presser; four Singer sewing machines; five goose irons; numerous tables, stoves and clothes racks, and it is thought the presser and sewing machines are mortgaged. It is also stated that he had a contract with Sears & Roebuck for 1,000 dresses and had in transit 4,500 yards of gingham to fill same and had secured a cash payment from this concern of $350 as a guarantee that they would take the completed garments.

He is also said to have made a practice of requiring parties ordering garments to make a substantial cash deposit and in this manner got away with many hundreds of dollars.

This is the "hardest hit" Mt. Sterling business interests have received at the hands of a crook for many a day and no stone will be left unturned to place him behind prison bars where he so justly belongs.

Prominent Morehead Citizen Killed Monday

About 3 o'clock Monday afternoon Harley Boyd, a son of Tom Boyd, of Morehead, shot and instantly killed Michael T. Dillon, a prominent citizen, farmer and merchant, near his home at Rodburn, two miles east of Morehead.

The trouble arose over Dillon's ejecting Boyd from his farm, he having gone there to hunt. Later Boyd went to the railroad crossing near the Dillon home, where the trouble was renewed, with the fatal results. A shotgun was used and Mr. Dillon's brains were literally blown out. He was about 50 years old and leaves a wife and four children and a large estate.
